

Hallway Coding

- How can changing our “perspective” and the way we visually navigate through a space change our understanding of what is “real” and what is created?
- How can we create evidence of life?
- What is the language we use to do this and how is this language changing?

Working on top of original observational drawings, students continued to draw and animate their work in Pencil Code.

